It's a mighty good thing, while you're running life's race, Just to paus, as you go, and come face to face With your conscience, and ask it a question or two, For it's right you should know what your life means to you.

Have you done things worth while, have you drifted along; Have you filled it with sighs, have you filled it with song, Have you helped when you should, have you tried to do right, Have you struggled for good, or just fought for might?

Have you given your hand to some fellow in need,"
Have you sneered at the man who was not of your creed,
Have you been open hearted and ready to do,
Have you tried to be just, have you tried to be true?

Oh, it's easy to preach and it's easy to tell
Of the other chap's faults—but our own faults, oh, well!
We are cowards at time and the trath, you will find,
Is a thing we dislike, for it's rather unkind.

But the past, let it rest. Give a thought to today, And tomorrow, as well, for the time's growing gray; Do the things that you should, do the best that you can, Crown your life with your deeds—be a red blooded man!

Boston English Opera Company to Present "Faust" at the Davis Theatre

Present "Faust" at the Davis Theatra.

The results of the efforts of Edward
M. Dock to establish opera in English have fulfilled his expectations.
As director of the Boston English Opera Company, which comes to the Davis, theatre on Friday, March 19, he has labored long and diligently te give the public performances of the standard operas in the grand opera repettory that they can understand because they are sung in the language of the country, and that they can enjoy because of the capabilities of the singers and the artistic completeness of the production.

"I think I have proved," he says,
"that opera can be sung in English, and produced as well under American direction as under any other. I have proved that it gives greater enjoyment to the mass of the people which comprises the average audience when it is sung in an understandable language than when foreign singers use a medium that but few can comprehend. Opera is drama set to music. The drama in the combination is almost as important as the music inself. If the drama cannot be understood then a large part of the music loses its effect. When we develop generally, as the Boston English Opera Company has developed, a native opera under native direction and American conductors, we shall at last be emanolpated from the foreign operatic monopoly.

play, "The Coniesson," which has been made into a marvellous motion picture by the National Film Corporation, featuring Henry Walthai, which is coming to the Dayis next week.

It was directed by Bertram Bracken, and cost one hundred and 'ninety-five thousand dollars to make.

The story of the picture is one calculated to hold its auditors spell bound from beginning to end, encompassing as it does the gamut of every human emotion, the love of sweetheart for sweetheart; brother for brother, and last, but not least, the love of a mother for her son.

"The Confession" as a stage play had a wonderful career and in its new form is much better, from the fact that it is not limited to the few stage scenes possible in a theatre.
